

Victory Performance Consulting

Helping good people change the world.

COMMUNICATING FOR RESULTS

How to Communicate More Effectively at Work

According to research, communication is the number one competency sought by employers, and a skill that separates leaders from losers. Average communicators experience miscommunication, misunderstanding, and missed opportunities. But when effective communicators speak, people listen! This program uses workplace simulation, self-assessments, and small group discussions to help you recognize and overcome complex communication issues and enhance your ability to communicate effectively at work and beyond. Want to communicate more effectively at work? Book this program.

Learning Objectives:

- Identify common root causes of personal and organizational miscommunication
- Recognize and compensate for factors that distort perception
- Convey information openly and respond to others effectively
- Apply proven communication techniques to influence others

Fields of Study:

- Communication
- Business Management & Organization

Competencies:

- Communicating Effectively
- Building & Maintaining Relationships